Health 101: Simple Ways to Take Care of Yourself

Self-care: the ultimate form of "pay it forward."

Nutrition

Our food has been increasingly depleted in nutrients over the past decades and many products are sprayed with "Round-Up" a chemical that has a profound impact on our gut physiology. Make sure you eat a balanced diet of organically grown products. A good comprehensive supplement program is also highly recommended.

The food "pyramid" has been changed in recent years, yet many people are still consuming far too many carbs and not enough good fat. The result is an obesity epidemic causing serious degenerative diseases.

Sleep

It is generally accepted that a majority of people are not sleeping enough and many not sleeping well enough. Seven to eight hours of sleep is a minimum for most people, including a period of deep sleep. Lack of sleep has many consequences including mental instability, excess weight and neurological imbalance. Adrenal balance plays a big role in sleep regulation.

Exercise

The new research indicates that regular exercise four times a week is critical for optimal health. Also, short sequences of intense exercise is considered the most effective. This often called interval training.

Mindfulness

Our lifestyle is, for the most part, very demanding. Many people report an over-active mind in a constant state of worry and agitation. Learning how to get back into neutral is essential. Whether you call it prayer, contemplation, relaxation or meditation is less important than just having a regular practice that brings you back into a state of inner peace. My new book, Empowering the Heart can get you on the road to a peaceful mind. To purchase the book, click here.

Prevention

It is better to prevent disease than to treat it. A comprehensive wellness panel blood test should be performed yearly to assess where you are and how to best manage your health. Most medical doctors do the bare essentials and are just looking for diseases rather than assessing your health. We can provide you with a very comprehensive panel for under $150. Additional specialized tests can also be added at very reasonable prices.

Helpful Resources

Here is the latest feedback from a recent client:

"I've been on your supplements program for about a week, and the positive results are astounding. My body has started healing very quickly. No one's advice -- including that from allopaths and one other homeopathically-inclined MD -- has succeeded like yours! I'm both deeply happy and very grateful for your help. Thank you! "
